Undergraduate program of Arts and Science of Animation
(BASA)
POSITION 64863

The School of Design invites candidates to apply for a Tenure Track Professor position for its Bachelor of Arts and Science in Animation program (BASA).

THE PROGRAM

BASA provides solid training in 2D and 3D animation. Students learn to design large-scale productions that integrate the animation studio's project management model. BASA's program is based on constant animation industry technological monitoring.

SCHOOL OF DESIGN

BASA is part of the School of Design (Université Laval), which also offers undergraduate and graduate programs in Graphic Design, Interaction Design, Product Design as well as Design and Entrepreneurship. Facilities include state-of-the-art workshops and laboratories within the School of Art.

Located in the heart of historic Quebec City Saint-Roch district, the School of Design offers an inspiring working environment and interaction with technological, artistic and cultural partners: animation industry leaders, artist centres, galleries, workshops, and theatres.

DESCRIPTION OF POSITION

- Teaching in both undergraduate and graduate levels
- Research and creation, publications and productions, participation in conferences
- Participation in the development and evolution of the program
- Participation in the academic and administrative life of the School of Design.
- Participation in activities external to the university, including academic endeavors demonstrating social commitment.

REQUIREMENTS

Ph.D. in the field of 2D or 3D animation, accompanied by a recognized practice. A master's degree with a quality field experience in animation. Consideration will be given to both peer and international recognition in the animation field.

The successful candidate will possess an excellent record in the fields of research and teaching or practice and teaching. Peer-recognized research and/or creation should demonstrate the candidate's expertise. The candidate will demonstrate best practices by winning prestigious scholarships, awards and competitions in his or her field, as the author of scholarly publications or production and as a speaker at conferences. The candidate will also be required to demonstrate that his or her vision aligns with the program's guidelines, its line of knowledge and the values it promotes.

Specifically, the candidate must demonstrate that he or she has:

- university teaching experience (practical and theoretical)
- recognized professional experience in the field of animation
- experience or ability to undertake a research and/or creation program as well as agree to undertake to seek grant applications complementary to the program's knowledge areas
- mastery of written and spoken French (the University offers candidates who cannot fully meet this requirement the possibility of taking training to acquire and/or perfect their knowledge of French)

The application package must include:

- 1) curriculum vitae;
- 2) a letter of intent showing how the candidate meets the requirements of the position, outlining his or her vision and how he or she intends to contribute to research and the development of the program;
- 3) three signed letters of recommendation addressed to the Director of the School of Design;
- 4) a portfolio demonstrating professional and personal achievements and publications. It may also include course, syllabus, teaching course evaluations and relevant examples of students' work.

Complete application package to be submitted, in digital format, to:

Michel Fleury, directeur École de design direction@design.ulaval.ca

CLOSING DATE FOR APPLICATIONS: The review of applications will commence on Monday, December 16, 2019, and will continue until the position is filled.

Starting Date: Wednesday, April 29, 2020.
